INTRODUCTION

On the two rolls of this microfilm publication, A3683, are reproduced over 6,100 manifests of alien arrivals at Ranier and International Falls, Minnesota, January 1909–December 1952. Some U.S. citizens are also included. These records are part of Records of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Record Group (RG) 85.

BACKGROUND

Early records relating to immigration originated in regional customhouses. The U.S. Customs Service conducted its business by designating collection districts. Each district had a headquarters port with a customhouse and a collector of customs, the chief officer of the district. An act of March 2, 1819 (3 Stat. 489), required the captain or master of a vessel arriving at a port in the United States or any of its territories from a foreign country to submit a list of passengers to the collector of customs. The act also required that the collector submit a quarterly report or abstract, consisting of copies of these passenger lists, to the Secretary of State, who was required to submit such information at each session of Congress. After 1874, collectors forwarded only statistical reports to the Treasury Department. The lists themselves were retained by the collector of customs. Customs records were maintained primarily for statistical purposes.

On August 3, 1882, Congress passed the first Federal law regulating immigration (22 Stat. 214); the Secretary of the Treasury had general supervision over it between 1882 and 1891. The Office of Superintendent of Immigration in the Department of the Treasury was established under an act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1085), and was later designated a bureau in 1895 with responsibility for administering the alien contract-labor laws. In 1900 administration of the Chinese exclusion laws was added. Initially the Bureau retained the same administrative structure of ports of entry that the Customs Service had used. By the turn of the century, it began to designate its own immigration districts, the numbers and boundaries of which changed over the years. In 1903 the Bureau became part of the Department of Commerce and Labor; its name was changed to the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization when functions relating to naturalization were added in 1906. In 1933 the functions were transferred to the Department of Labor and became the responsibility of the newly formed Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). Under President Roosevelt's Reorganization Plan V of 1940, the INS was moved to the Department of Justice. The INS was abolished, and its immigration and naturalization recordkeeping functions were transferred to the new Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services within the new Department of Homeland Security, established January 24, 2003, by the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (Pub. L. 107-296, § 471, 116 Stat. 2135, 2205).

Keeping statistics on alien arrivals at U.S. land borders was not required by early immigration acts. Thus, the statistical treatment of Canadian and Mexican border immigrants at times has differed from that of other immigrants. When records of arrivals began to be kept at the Canadian border in 1895 and at the Mexican border, ca. 1906, immigration authorities found it impractical to collect arrival information on lists as they did for ship passengers. Therefore, separate cards or "card manifests" for each person were used instead. These cards contained the same information as that collected on traditional ship passenger arrival lists, such as full name, age, sex, marital status, occupation, point of arrival in the United States, and final destination.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS AND DEFINITIONS

Beginning in 1895, immigrants who arrived at Canadian seaports with the declared intention of proceeding to the United States by land were recorded and included in immigration statistics. (Some aliens may have chosen this route because of possibly lower fares from Europe to Canada.) All other alien arrivals at U.S. northern and southern land borders were reported beginning in 1906; and reporting was fully established in 1908 under authority of an act of February 20, 1907 (34 Stat. 898). "All other aliens" included Canadians, all aliens arriving at the Mexican border, and any alien resident or nonresident of Canada who had not, at a Canadian seaport, previously declared their intent to proceed to the United States.

Not all aliens entering via the Canadian and Mexican borders were necessarily counted for inclusion in the immigration statistics. Before about 1930, no count was made of residents of Canada, Newfoundland, or Mexico who had lived in those countries for a year or more if they planned to enter the United States for less than six months. However, from about 1930 to 1945, the following classes of aliens entering via the land borders were included in immigration statistics:

- (1) Those who had not been in the U.S. within six months, who came to stay more than six months
- (2) Those for whom straight head tax was a prerequisite to admission, or for whom head tax was specially deposited and subsequently converted to a straight head tax account¹

¹ A head tax was required to be paid by persons entering the U.S. who were not citizens of the U.S., the Dominion of Canada, Newfoundland, the Republic of Cuba, or the Republic of Mexico.

- (3) Those required by law or regulation to present an immigration visa or reentry permit, and those who surrendered either, regardless of whether they were required by law or regulation to do so
- (4) Those announcing an intention to depart from a seaport in the United States for Hawaii or other insular possession of the U.S. or for a foreign country, except arrivals from Canada intending to return there by water
- (5) Those announcing an intention to depart across the other land boundary.

These classes were revised in 1945 so that the statistics of arriving aliens at land border ports of entry for 1945-52 included arriving aliens who came into the United States for 30 days or more, and returning alien residents who had been out of the country more than 6 months. Arriving aliens who came into the United States for 29 days or less were not counted except for those who were either certified by public health officials, held for a board of special inquiry, excluded and deported, or were individuals in transit who announced an intention to depart across another land boundary or by sea.

From 1953 to at least 1957, all arriving aliens at land border ports of entry were counted for statistical purposes except Canadian citizens and British subjects resident in Canada who were admitted for 6 months or less; Mexican citizens who were admitted for 72 hours or less; and returning U.S. residents who had been out of the country for more than 6 months. Beginning in February 1956, residents returning from stays of less than 6 months in Western Hemisphere countries also were not counted. Because of changed regulations in 1957, returning residents without reentry permits or visas who had been abroad for 1 year or less were not counted.

Summary: Statistical arrivals were immigrants or nonimmigrants who were subject to the head tax and generally not from the Western Hemisphere. By contrast, nonstatistical arrivals were immigrants or nonimmigrants who usually were natives of the Western Hemisphere and not subject to the head tax. Although arrival of the latter was not included in immigration statistics, a record of that arrival may still have been made. It cannot be said with certainty that the definitions of statistical and nonstatistical arrivals were applied uniformly at any particular port on the Canadian or Mexican borders during the period covered by this microfilm publication.

DEFINITIONS OF IMMIGRANT (PERMANENT) AND NONIMMIGRANT (TEMPORARY) ARRIVALS

Since 1906, arriving aliens have been divided into two classes: (1) immigrants, or those who intended to settle in the U.S.; and (2) nonimmigrants, who were admitted aliens who declared an intention not to settle in the U.S., and all aliens returning to resume domiciles formerly acquired in the U.S. Since 1924, aliens arriving to settle in the U.S. have been further classified as quota or nonquota immigrants. Quota immigrants were those admitted under quotas established for countries in Europe, Asia, Africa, the Pacific Basin and the colonies, dependencies, and protectorates belonging to those nations. Nonquota immigrants were spouses and unmarried children of U.S. citizens; natives from the independent countries of the Western Hemisphere, their spouses, and unmarried children under 18 years of age; and members of the clergy who entered with their families to carry on their profession. From 1933 to 1952, professors and their spouses and children were also classified as nonquota immigrants. Nonimmigrants were alien residents of the U.S. returning from a temporary visit abroad, or nonresident aliens admitted to the U.S. for a temporary period, such as tourists, students, foreign government officials, those engaged in business, people representing international organizations, the spouses and unmarried children of all these individuals, and agricultural laborers from the West Indies.

RECORDS DESCRIPTION

The records are card manifests of statistical (permanent) and nonstatistical (temporary) alien arrivals arranged in two subseries. Many cards were lightly typewritten or handwritten and these may reproduce poorly, if at all.

Some of the card manifests included in this microfilm publication contain information copied from original records that are no longer extant. During 1936–39, the Works Progress Administration (WPA)—established in 1935 and renamed Work Projects Administration in 1939—copied information from original INS records at Ranier and International Falls onto INS Forms 548-B, a three- by five-inch card, and arranged these cards alphabetically by surname, then by first name. The copying and alphabetizing project at Port Huron, Michigan, for example, involved records of primary inspection, 1907–15, as well as Board of Special Inquiry minutes and Form 524 certificate of landing books. The related INS Central Office Correspondence File, 55938/908,² includes correspondence that suggests original records dated as late as June 1922 were included in this copying and indexing project. The project's goal was to enable INS employees to more efficiently locate an individual's immigration record(s) when needed for official or legal purposes. Similar WPA copying and alphabetizing projects were done for immigration records from other northern border ports of entry.

SERIES 1: MANIFESTS OF PERMANENT ALIEN ARRIVALS AT RANIER AND INTERNATIONAL FALLS, JANUARY 1909–DECEMBER 1952

This series consists of manifests of aliens intending to permanently remain in the U.S. recorded on Forms 548, 548-B, I-448, and Spl. 187A (all described below under "Forms Used"). Some cards note the date and place (normally Winnipeg, Manitoba) that the alien was pre-inspected for admission to the U.S. The records are arranged alphabetically by surname then by given name. Surnames beginning with "Mc" follow those beginning with "Maz."

SERIES 2: MANIFESTS OF ALIEN ARRIVALS AT RANIER RECORDED ON FORM SPL. 187 ("SHORT FORM"), AUGUST 29, 1912–AUGUST 25, 1923

This series consists of alien arrivals recorded on "Short Form" Form Spl. 187 (described below under "Forms Used"). These were probably permanent arrivals, but that intention is not annotated on the form. The records are arranged chronologically. The bulk of the arrivals are for 1914–17.

FORMS USED

INS Form 548, 548-B, or I-448, Manifest or Report of Inspection, generally includes the person's name, age, gender, marital status, place of birth, physical description, occupation, citizenship ("nationality"), race, ability to read and write and in what language, place of last permanent residence, port and date of arrival, destination, purpose for entering the U.S., intention of becoming a U.S. citizen or of returning to country of previous residence, head tax status, and previous citizenships. It also includes the name and address of the friend or relative whom the alien intended to join, persons accompanying the alien, and the name and address of the alien's nearest relative or friend in the country from which he or she came. If the alien had ever been in the U.S. in the past, the dates and places of such residence or visitation are indicated. Additional information may be recorded if the alien appealed a decision deporting or barring him or her from entering the United States. Records on Form 548 or I-448 were made contemporaneously with the alien's arrival; records on Form 548-B were created during the WPA project described above.

Form "Spl 187A," Primary Inspection Memorandum ("Card Form"), which was used for alien arrivals, includes person's name, gender, age, marital status, occupation, ability to read and write and in what language, head tax status, citizenship, race, place of last permanent residence, destination, citizenship before becoming a citizen of Canada, port and date of arrival, destination, purpose for entering the U.S., intention of becoming a U.S. citizen, head tax status, and previous citizenships. It also includes the name and address of the friend or relative whom the alien intended to join, persons accompanying the alien, and the name and address of the alien's nearest relative or friend in the country from which he or she came. If the alien had ever been in the U.S. in the past, the dates and places of such residence or visitation are indicated. Additional information may be recorded on the reverse side of the card if the alien appealed a decision barring him or her from entering the U.S.

Form "Spl. 187," Primary Inspection Memorandum ("Short Form"), which was used for alien arrivals, includes the person's name, gender, age, marital status, occupation, ability to read and write and in what language, citizenship, race, place of last permanent residence, and destination. It also includes the name and address of the friend or relative whom the alien intended to join, and the name and address of the alien's nearest relative or friend in the country from which he or she came. If the alien had ever been in the U.S. in the past, the date of arrival and departure and the places of such residence or visitation are indicated. (The date may be a year, month and year, or day, month, and year.) Other details noted include the date, port, and ship of prior arrival in North America, and the amount of money shown to the immigration inspector. The reverse side was annotated with the person's place of birth (town/city and country) and physical description, including height, and color of complexion, hair, and eyes.

Form "Spl. 187," Primary Inspection Memorandum ("Long Form"), which was used for alien arrivals, includes all the information in the "short form" plus it asks whether the alien intends to return to the country from which he or she came, how long the alien intends to remain in the U.S., and whether he or she intends to become a U.S. citizen.

GENERAL REMARKS

The records were filmed by the INS in 1956 and transferred to the National Archives on microfilm. The film is heavily "measled," that is, it is heavily spotted as a result of silver oxidation, which often occurs in acetate film due to one or more of the following causes: inadequate film processing (improper developing and washing), improper storage conditions (high heat and humidity), or storage in nonarchival storage (acidic) boxes. Spotting may severely impair the legibility of much of this microfilm publication. Although some of this film may be difficult to read, it is impossible to correct the situation since the INS destroyed the original records.
